Let the celebration begin

10:30 a.m.
Sunday, May 15, 2016
Memorial Stadium
Lawrence, Kansas
The event is steeped in tradition. An exuberant procession of graduates marches through the Memorial Campanile, down the Hill, and into Memorial Stadium, where the chancellor confers degrees on a new class of Jayhawks.

Commencement 2016 will be an especially significant event because we are also celebrating the sesquicentennial of the University of Kansas. We are excited you will be a part of it — taking your place in KU’s history as you take the first steps into your future.

ACADEMIC REGALIA

At Commencement, faculty and graduating students wear traditional academic regalia to signify the degree-granting university and the wearer’s level of achievement.

At KU, bachelor’s degree candidates wear traditional mortarboards with colored tassels and gowns with pointed sleeves.

Master’s degree candidates wear mortarboards with black tassels, gowns with square-cut sleeves, and draped hoods.

Doctoral candidates wear tams with short black tassels, gowns with bell-shaped sleeves, and draped hoods with a velvet edging.

University marshals and the chancellor wear distinctive regalia designed specially for KU. Honorary degree recipients wear the doctoral gown and hoods lined in white (Arts and Letters), purple (Laws), or gold (Science).

The tassels for bachelor’s degree candidates, the lining of the hoods for master’s degree candidates, and the velvet edging on the hoods for doctoral candidates are in colors that signify the wearer’s discipline.

Architecture, Design & Planning: light purple
Business: light brown
Education: light blue
Engineering: orange
Journalism & Mass Communications: crimson
Health Professions: salmon
Law: purple
Liberal Arts & Sciences: white
Medicine: green
Music: pink
Nursing: apricot
Pharmacy: olive green
Social Welfare: citron
Doctor of Philosophy (PhD): dark blue
CELEBRATING 150

KU150 graduates — those whose degrees are conferred in the university’s sesquicentennial year — will receive, in addition to their official diplomas, commemorative diplomas that include the signatures of 17 KU chancellors.

All graduates of the University of Kansas are invited to order this special edition diploma, which will include degree information and the original conferral date.

To order: registrar.ku.edu/ku150-diploma

BANNERS

School banners and class banners are a tradition stretching almost as far back as the university itself.

University Archives preserves class banners going back to 1873. Visit jayhawks.com/classbanners.

Senior class representatives Jake Gould, Carly Van Blaricum, Radwan Dayib, and Erin Meyer will carry the Class of 2016 banner ahead of the degree candidates. The senior class motto is “Home is behind, the world ahead,” a quote from author J.R.R. Tolkien.

The faculty of each school selects graduates who carry the school banner at the head of its section in the procession.
HONORARY DEGREES

KU awards honorary degrees to individuals who have made notable contributions to the sciences, arts, laws, or humanities.

The 2016 honorary degree recipients are two KU alumni: visual artist Terry Evans, doctor of arts, and technology entrepreneur Brian McClendon, doctor of science.

TERRY EVANS
The Great Plains lacked an iconic visual artist until Terry Evans, a renowned photographer and KU alumnus, devoted herself to the region.

Through ground and aerial photography, Evans has translated America’s prairies and plains into arresting images that explore the way landscapes and people shape each other. In addition to the heartland, Evans has trained her lens on Chicago’s “urban prairie,” the North Dakota oil boom, and Greenland ice sheets.

Evans is a Guggenheim Fellow, a recipient of an Anonymous Was a Woman award, and a former member of the Land Institute board.

BRIAN MCCLENDON
He put us on the map. As the visionary behind Google Earth and Google Maps, Brian McClendon put Lawrence at the center of the world.

McClendon is responsible for geospatial technology that will forever change the fields of engineering and science, geography, meteorology, and anthropology.

McClendon invented the Keyhole Markup Language (KML), which allowed the creation of two- and three-dimensional Web-based maps. KML — later acquired by Google — allows users to interactively display their own information on Google Earth maps, thus providing scientists and citizens a free platform for delivering global information.

In 2013, McClendon received a Champion of the Earth award, the United Nation’s top environmental prize, “for harnessing the power of technology to support conservation and green economic development.”

McClendon is one of only five KU engineering alumni to be inducted into the National Academy of Engineering. He left Google in 2015 and is vice president of advanced technologies at Uber Technologies Inc.
Terry Evans
Doctor of arts, for outstanding contributions to the fields of photography and visual arts

Brian McClendon
Doctor of science, for outstanding contributions to the fields of electrical engineering and computer science
On Sept. 12, 1866, the University of Kansas welcomed its first students to a single building on a bleak, treeless ridge called Mount Oread.

“It was a bright and beautiful morning with a hint of autumn coolness in the air,” one of those students, Susan Savage, remembered years later. “On that morning, I went out early into the dewy pasture to catch my pony for the three-mile ride into town.”

This auspicious moment was set in turbulent times.

The state of Kansas was just five years old and the Civil War had ended the year before. Lawrence residents had mostly recovered from William Quantrill’s 1863 raid, which torched the city and killed nearly 200, and they were determined to establish a university on the hill.
“No one, I am sure, ever climbed Mount Oread with higher hopes than were mine on that September morning.”
—Susan Savage

That first building — still unfinished — housed classrooms, a library, and offices for the faculty of three. The 55 young men and women who enrolled, though bright and eager, were unprepared for college work.

Still, it was a time of unshakable optimism about the power of education. “No one, I am sure, ever climbed Mount Oread with higher hopes than were mine on that September morning,” Savage recalled.

Since that cool autumn morning 150 years ago, KU has grown into its role as the state’s flagship university and a national public research institution with a global reach. Its classrooms, libraries, labs, research centers, and medical facilities spread across multiple campuses. Its faculty, students, and alumni travel the country and the world for research, study, and work.

Through tumultuous days and peaceful times, KU has remained true to its historic values: the elevating force of education, the transformative power of research, and the healing power of service.

Today, as we celebrate the achievements of our graduates, we also celebrate 150 years of Jayhawk tradition, history, and accomplishments.
Flora Richardson is KU’s first female graduate — and the first class valedictorian — among the four members of the Class of 1873.

On Arbor Day, students and faculty plant 300 trees on the slope of Mount Oread. The area will be called Marvin Grove, after Chancellor James Marvin, who inspired the beautification project.

First medical course

At a meeting that could be considered the birth of the KU Medical Center, KU faculty vote to establish a preparatory or first-year medical course. In September, the first six students begin classes.

The first Kansas Relays are held in the new Memorial Stadium.
March 1924
Uncle Jimmy Green statue
The Graduate Magazine announces that the Uncle Jimmy Green statue will be unveiled at Commencement.
The graduates march from Strong Hall down the Hill and into Memorial Stadium. Commencement speaker Edwin E. Slosson, director of Science Service, Washington, D.C., predicts that fossil fuels will run out and that scientists must find alternative energy sources like wind power. He suggests placing a row of windmills diagonally across the state.

SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS & ADMINISTRATION

September 1944
No more freshman caps
As the war draws to an end, veterans enrolling as freshmen refuse to don “freshman caps,” ending a decades-old tradition.

1947
A good investment
Hal Sandy, who created the smiling Jayhawk in 1946 while a student, sells the copyright to the Kansas Union Bookstore for $250 following his graduation.

Ceremonial mace and collar
For the first time at Commencement, the chancellor (W. Clarke Wescoe) wears the silver collar bearing the university seal, and the university marshal carries the mace, carved from a stair railing of old Fraser Hall. Both were created by Carlyle H. Smith (left), professor of silversmithing.

August 1965
Fraser Hall demolished
The original Fraser Hall — which had stood for 93 years but had been deemed unsalvageable — is torn down despite protests.

The Human Cannonball

Four thousand people show up at Potter Lake to watch student Dan Wessel, calling himself “The Great Wessellini: The Human Cannonball,” attempt to launch himself over the lake inside a Plexiglas bubble.

May 1974

Yes, they call it the streak

Wearing open black robes and mortarboards — and nothing else — two Commencement streakers sprint the length of the football field just as Chancellor Archie Dykes tells the graduates that “the mark you leave upon the university is an indelible one.”

June 2012
World-class cancer center
The KU Cancer Center receives a National Cancer Institute designation, a milestone that brings clinical trials and world-class care to the region.

October 2012
Largest grant
Researchers receive a five-year, $24.5 million grant to develop a national center to assist schools in educating general and special education students together. The grant, from the U.S. Department of Education, is the largest in KU history.
June 2013 NCAA outdoor track and field champs

The KU women’s track and field team wins the 2013 NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championship, the first time in KU history.

January 2015 President Obama visits

Barack Obama is the fourth sitting president — and the first since 1911 — to speak at KU.
This is your time

Now it’s official. You’ve joined a 150-year history filled with Jayhawks whose dreams and ideas have changed the world.

Celebrate, and step into your future.
Crimson and the Blue

Far above the golden valley
Glorious to view,
Stands our noble Alma Mater,
Towering toward the blue.

CHORUS:
Lift the chorus ever onward,
Crimson and the blue
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater,
Hail to old KU.

Far above the distant humming
Of the busy town,
Reared against the dome of heaven.
Looks she proudly down.

(REPEAT CHORUS)

Greet we then our foster mother,
Noble friend so true,
We will ever sing her praises,
Hail to old KU.

(REPEAT CHORUS)

I’m a Jayhawk

Talk about the Sooners, Cowboys and the Bears,
Aggies and the Tiger and his tail.
Talk about the Wildcats, and the Cyclone boys,
But I’m the bird to make ‘em weep and wail

CHORUS:
‘Cause I’m a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
Up at Lawrence on the Kaw–
‘Cause I’m a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
With a sis-boom, hip hoorah,
Got a bill that’s big enough
To twist a Tiger’s tail,
Rope some ‘Horns and listen
To the Red Raiders wail–
‘Cause I’m a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
Riding on a Kansas gale.
